"Light is the lifeblood of designs"

Gregory Kay – CEO at PureEdge Lighting & Lightology –

Enhancing the ambiance of your outdoor seating area with stunning nautical-themed lighting that exudes a unique sense of style is always a great idea. The integration of beautiful lights inspired by marine ships or lighthouses on the seaport in the exterior spaces of the house will create an aesthetic and modern look instead of the usual appearance. Today, Thursday, two Lebanese depositors stormed a bank in Mount Lebanon to demand their deposits, according to what the Lebanese "Depositors' Cry Association" announced on its Twitter account.

The association said, "Depositors Wassim Hatoum and Ashraf Salha stormed the Byblos Bank, Sin El Fil branch, carrying bottles of gasoline, threatening to burn the bank branch unless they got their two deposits that had been held in the bank since the beginning of the financial crisis in late 2019.

She explained that "the depositor, Wassim Hatoum, has a deposit of 5,400 dollars, while Ashraf Saleh's deposit is 23,200 dollars." The association called on all depositors to go to the bank to support depositors in releasing their money.

The branches of 3 Lebanese banks had witnessed intrusions in separate areas in Lebanon two days ago, while the Association of Lebanese Banks hinted that the banks could not continue to continue their business, and would have to return to previous regulatory measures in the event that the attacks on their branches did not stop, calling for "avoiding unimaginable consequences".

Lebanon has been suffering from a financial and economic crisis since 2019, which led to banks refusing to hand over deposits to depositors, and a number of depositors began storming banks to obtain their deposits since last September, and these operations stopped during the past months, but they returned again this July.
